Preliminary Amendment in Application

In response to the Examiner's advisory action of July 18, 2003, Applicants present the following arguments to the Examiner's rejection and requests the Examiner to reconsider the rejection of the instant application. The claims in the application, claims 1-22 remain pending in this application and are not amended pursuant to the presentation of this response. The specification has been previously amended to reflect government rights in the invention as a consequence of providing certain support for research into the present invention.

Applicants assert that the Examiner's rejection of the instant claims under 35 U.S.C. §103 is based upon an impermissible hindsight reconstruction of the teachings of the prior art, which is at best, completely ambiguous. Moreover, a clear reading of the Examiner's rejection in light of the current law, shows that the rejection is improper.

The following claims are pending in the present application:

- 1. (Original) A method of treating diabetes in an animal, said method comprising administering to said animal a therapeutically effective amount of conjugated linoleic acid.
 - 2. (Original) The method of claim 1, wherein said conjugated linoleic acid is
